

Carers and Support – Pre-Residential Care

Following my mother's dementia diagnosis the ACCESS support service arranged for her to have home care visits every day and a hot meal delivered at lunch times. This care plan commenced on the 1st.June 1996 under contract to Suffolk County Council. The carer visits were provided by Home-Care of Ipswich. Originally these plans contained a provision for my mother to attend the Minsmere Day Centre at Heath Road Hospital, Ipswich where, amongst other things, they could monitor her dementia. Pick-up transport was provided but she refused to go most times so she lost her place in October 1996 and the care plan changed. Subsequently, defined appointments were made and I took her myself for these regular assessments. These are covered separately.

My mother had been prescribed medication for her condition, see later, and it was left to the carers to prompt her each day to take the medication. Unfortunately, boxes seem to go missing or my mother took pills on her own and it got to the point where she couldn't be trusted so a lockable case was used for the medication (dosset box) such that the carers could access this for her and prompt the correct dosage. Now because I lived 150 miles away, I was quite detached from my mother's care although just organising and arranging from afar was a busy task in itself. To understand more about my mother's condition I asked the carers to note anything relevant in a diary I had put in the case. This they agreed to do and although my mother had several different carers, I am particularly grateful to Margaret and Doreen for providing the care for my mother and letting me know of any concerns. The comments below are the words written by the carers themselves. In retrospect, it is clear how the Alzheimer's is progressing over time from these entries. Essentially she moves from Stage 4 in 1997 to early Stage 6 in 1998.
